Dear colleagues,

As many of you are aware, the renovation of our third-floor offices is scheduled to begin on Monday, March 24. Do not pack your computer or monitor; the IT department will handle the transfer and reconnection of all electronic equipment over the weekend.

If you require any special accommodations during the move, or if you anticipate being out of the office during the relocation period, please contact me directly at extension 4471 no later than March 18 so that arrangements can be made on your behalf.

Marlowe Tower Office Park — Parking Reassignment Notice

To all tenants of Buildings C and D:

Beginning Monday, March 9, the underground parking structure beneath Building C will be closed for resurfacing. This work is expected to take approximately three weeks. During this period, all employees who normally use the Building C garage must park in the East Surface Lot, located across Renwick Avenue.

To enter the East Surface Lot, you will need a temporary access card. These cards are different from your regular garage badges and will not be issued automatically. Each tenant company should designate one staff member to collect cards on behalf of all its employees. Cards may be picked up at the management office (Suite 110) between 8:00 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. on weekdays only.

We apologize for the inconvenience. Building D's garage is unaffected and will operate as usual.

— Marlowe Tower Property Management

EMAIL

To: All Halverson Logistics staff
From: Priya Anand, Office Coordinator
Subject: Action needed before March 9

Hi everyone,

You've probably seen the notice posted in the elevators about the garage closure. Since our office is in Building C, this affects all of us who drive in.

I'll be the one collecting the temporary cards for our whole team, so please do not go to Suite 110 yourselves — they'll only hand them to the designated person anyway. I plan to pick them up this Thursday morning. If you drive to work and will need a card, reply to this email by Wednesday at noon so I know how many to request.

One more thing: the management office is only open for card pickup in the mornings, so if you join the company after this week and need a card, let me know early and I'll arrange it.

For those of you who take the train or work from home most days, you can ignore all of this.

Thanks,
Priya

10.

What is the main purpose of the notice?

(A) To announce a rise in monthly parking fees
(B) To inform tenants about a temporary parking change
(C) To recruit staff for a maintenance project
(D) To remind tenants to renew their garage badges

11.

According to the notice, how can a tenant company obtain temporary access cards?

(A) By applying online through the management website
(B) By having each employee visit Suite 110 individually
(C) By sending one designated staff member to the management office
(D) By mailing a request form to the property manager

12.

Why most likely did Priya tell colleagues not to go to Suite 110 themselves?

(A) The office is too far from Building C
(B) Cards are issued only to the company's designated person
(C) Employees must pay a fee at the office
(D) The office is closed for the entire three weeks

13.

What should an employee who works from home most days do?

(A) Reply to Priya by Wednesday noon
(B) Pick up a card on Thursday morning
(C) Disregard the instructions in the email
(D) Park in the East Surface Lot starting March 9

A Quiet Café Bets on Slowing Down

When Dahlia Forsythe opened Meridian Roastworks in the Eastbrook district two years ago, she made a decision that puzzled her fellow café owners: she refused to install a wireless internet connection. "Everyone told me I was making a mistake," she recalls. "The assumption is that people come to a café to work for hours over a single coffee."

Forsythe wagered the opposite. She believed a growing number of customers were tired of cafés that felt like crowded offices, where every table is occupied by someone staring at a laptop. Her gamble was that, without internet, those laptop users would go elsewhere — and that this would actually be good for business.

Her reasoning was about table turnover. A customer working on a laptop might occupy a seat for three hours while buying one drink. A customer who comes simply to talk, read, or relax tends to stay forty minutes and is more likely to order food. "I wasn't trying to be unfriendly to remote workers," she says. "I was trying to build a different kind of room."

The early months were difficult. Reviews online frequently complained about the lack of internet, and weekday mornings were sparse. But Forsythe held firm, and gradually a different crowd appeared: retirees meeting friends, parents with young children, people reading novels. Weekend afternoons, once her slowest period, became her busiest.

Other café owners in Eastbrook have taken notice. Two have since reduced the number of power outlets in their seating areas, and one has begun switching off its internet during peak weekend hours. None, however, have gone as far as Forsythe. "I'm not telling anyone else how to run their café," she says. "But I'd encourage them to question the assumption that more amenities always mean more customers."

What was unusual about Forsythe's decision when she opened her café?

(A) She chose not to offer wireless internet
(B) She refused to serve food
(C) She located the café far from other businesses
(D) She kept the café open only on weekends

15.

The word "wagered" in paragraph 2 is closest in meaning to

(A) complained
(B) bet
(C) forgot
(D) denied

16.

According to the article, why did Forsythe believe removing internet would help her business?

(A) It would reduce her monthly operating costs
(B) It would attract more remote workers
(C) It would increase how quickly tables became available
(D) It would allow her to raise drink prices

17.

What is indicated about other café owners in Eastbrook?

(A) They have all removed internet access completely
(B) They have made some changes but not gone as far as Forsythe
(C) They have asked Forsythe to manage their cafés
(D) They have seen their weekend business decline

Hi Jerome — the delivery van just got to the warehouse but the loading dock is completely blocked. There's a parked truck with no driver in it. Any idea whose it is?

I must have missed it. So Dock 2 is out of commission?

Jerome Pak (9:46 a.m.)
For today, yes. But Dock 4 on the north side is open. The driver can pull around the back of the building.

Renata Voss (9:47 a.m.)

Renata Voss (9:49 a.m.)
Perfect, redirecting them now. Thanks for jumping on this.

(A) To report that a delivery had not arrived
(B) To ask about a truck blocking the loading dock
(C) To complain about the flooring contractor

At 9:45 a.m., what does Renata most likely mean when she writes, "I must have missed it"?

To: Marcus Whitfield <m.whitfield@brightlanetech.com>
From: Diana Okafor <d.okafor@brightlanetech.com>
Date: March 14
Subject: Update on the Riverside relocation

Dear Marcus,

I am writing to bring you up to date on the move to our new Riverside office. As you know, the lease on our current building expires at the end of May, so we have been working to ensure a smooth transition before then.

The good news is that the renovation of the third floor is now complete, and the new workstations were installed last week. However, the conference rooms on the second floor still require additional wiring for the video equipment, which the contractor estimates will take another ten days. For this reason, I recommend that we postpone the all-staff orientation tour, originally planned for March 20, until early April.

In the meantime, I would appreciate it if you could prepare a packing schedule for the marketing department. Please keep in mind that the IT team needs at least three business days to disconnect and transport the servers, so the schedule should account for that.

Let me know if you have any questions.

Best regards,
Diana Okafor
Facilities Coordinator

21.

Why was the email written?

(A) To announce that a lease has been renewed
(B) To provide an update on an office relocation
(C) To request approval for a renovation budget
(D) To confirm the date of a staff celebration

22.

What does Ms. Okafor suggest doing?

(A) Extending the current lease by one month
(B) Hiring an additional contractor
(C) Delaying the all-staff orientation tour
(D) Canceling the video equipment order

23.

What is Mr. Whitfield asked to do?

(A) Prepare a packing schedule
(B) Install new workstations
(C) Disconnect the servers personally
(D) Sign the new lease agreement

24.

According to the email, how long does the IT team need to move the servers?

(A) At least ten days
(B) At least three business days
(C) About one week
(D) Until the end of May

Olivia Reyes (10:02 A.M.)
Hi Tom, the client just called. They want to move the product demo up to this Thursday instead of next Monday. Can the prototype be ready by then?

Tom Nakamura (10:05 A.M.)

Olivia Reyes (10:06 A.M.)
Any idea when it'll show up?

I'll chase the supplier now. If it comes today, I can assemble and test by Wednesday night. If not, Thursday is off the table.

Olivia Reyes (10:09 A.M.)
Understood. Let me hold off on confirming with the client until you hear back. Can you let me know by noon?

Tom Nakamura (10:10 A.M.)
Will do. Fingers crossed.

29.

What is the main topic of the discussion?

(A) Hiring a new supplier
(B) Whether a prototype can be ready for an earlier demo
(C) Choosing a casing design for a product
(D) Scheduling a meeting with a new client

30.

What is causing a possible delay?

EMAIL

To: Marcus Delvane <m.delvane@brightledge-design.com>
From: Priya Naskar <p.naskar@verlandtextiles.com>
Date: 14 March
Subject: Re: Mock-ups for the spring catalogue

Dear Mr. Delvane,

Thank you for sending over the three cover concepts yesterday afternoon. The marketing team reviewed them this morning, and we agree that the second concept—the one with the folded-fabric photograph—captures the direction we discussed at our kick-off meeting.

There is, however, one adjustment we would like to request before we proceed. The product code that appears beneath each item in the sample spread is set in a typeface that is rather difficult to read against the darker backgrounds. Could the codes be enlarged slightly and shifted to a lighter band? Our customers rely on those codes when placing orders by phone, so legibility is essential.

I should mention that our printing vendor has moved its deadline forward by a week. To stay on schedule, we would need the revised files no later than 22 March. I realize this is tighter than originally planned, and if the timing is not workable, please let me know at once so we can discuss alternatives.

Best regards,
Priya Naskar
Catalogue Coordinator, Verland Textiles

33.

What is the main purpose of the email?

(A) To request a meeting to discuss a new project
(B) To approve a design and ask for a specific change
(C) To complain about the quality of a printed catalogue
(D) To recommend a different printing vendor

34.

Why does Ms. Naskar say the product codes need to be more legible?

(A) Because customers use them to order over the phone
(B) Because the printing vendor requires larger text
(C) Because they appear on the cover of the catalogue
(D) Because the marketing team could not read them

35.

What does Ms. Naskar indicate about the deadline?

(A) It has been extended by one week
(B) It was set during the kick-off meeting
(C) It has been moved earlier than originally planned
(D) It can be ignored if necessary

Harborview Community Recreation Center
Notice to Members — Summer Swim Program

Beginning 1 June, the center will run its annual learn-to-swim program in the main pool. Sessions are grouped by experience rather than by age, so adults and children may register for the same level. Each course runs for four weeks, with two lessons per week.

Spaces are limited and tend to fill quickly. Members who registered for any program last summer may sign up one day before general registration opens. To claim this early access, bring last year's membership card to the front desk; online early registration is not available this year because of a system upgrade.

A reminder that the "Stroke Refinement" course assumes that participants can already swim one full length of the pool without stopping. Staff will conduct a brief check on the first day, and anyone not yet at that standard will be moved, without charge, to the level below.

Course	Level	Day & Time	Fee
First Splash	Beginner	Mon & Wed, 9:00 a.m.	$40
Building Confidence	Beginner	Tue & Thu, 6:00 p.m.	$45

Open Water Prep	Advanced	Sat, 8:00 a.m.	$70

36.

According to the notice, how are the courses organized?

(A) By the age of the participants
(B) By the swimming ability of the participants
(C) By the time of day each member prefers
(D) By how long a member has belonged to the center

37.

How can a member obtain early registration access?

(A) By completing a swimming check in advance
(B) By signing up through the center's website
(C) By paying an additional fee at the front desk
(D) By presenting last year's membership card in person

38.

Look at the table. Which course requires participants to swim one length of the pool without stopping?

(A) First Splash
(B) Building Confidence
(C) Stroke Refinement
(D) Open Water Prep

39.

What happens to a participant who cannot meet the standard for a course?

(A) They are moved to a lower level at no extra cost

(B) They receive a full refund

(C) They must wait until the next summer program

(D) They are charged a small reassessment fee

To: Daniela Forsythe <d.forsythe@brightmark-consulting.com>
From: Conference Services, Lakeview Pavilion <events@lakeviewpavilion.com>
Date: 14 March
Subject: Your event inquiry — Spring Leadership Summit

Dear Ms. Forsythe,

Thank you for considering the Lakeview Pavilion for your company's two-day leadership summit in May. Based on the details you provided — approximately 80 attendees, a need for catered lunches on both days, and audiovisual support for presentations — I have outlined our four meeting packages below.

Please note that the Summit and Premier packages include complimentary on-site parking for all attendees, which the smaller packages do not. Since you mentioned that most of your participants will be driving in from neighboring towns, this may be a deciding factor.

One clarification: our standard audiovisual support covers a projector and microphone, but live-streaming equipment is available only as a paid add-on (250 dollars per day), regardless of which package you select. Let me know if you require it.

If you confirm your booking before the end of March, I can apply a 10 percent early-reservation discount to the total. I would be glad to arrange a site visit at your convenience.

Warm regards,
Marcus Tella
Conference Services Coordinator

Package	Max Capacity	Catered Lunch	AV Support	Price (per day)
Essential	40	Not included	Projector only	$600
Standard	60	Included	Projector + mic	$950
Summit	100	Included	Projector + mic	$1,400
Premier	150	Included	Projector + mic + tech staff	$1,900

65.

Why did Mr. Tella write the email?

(A) To confirm a booking that has already been paid for
(B) To respond to a request for information about meeting options
(C) To apologize for a scheduling error
(D) To advertise a newly opened event venue

66.

Look at the table. Based on the requirements described in the email, which is the least expensive package that meets all of Ms. Forsythe's needs?

(A) Essential
(B) Standard
(C) Summit
(D) Premier

67.

What is indicated about the live-streaming equipment?

(A) It is included free with the Premier package
(B) It must be reserved a month in advance
(C) It costs an additional fee no matter which package is chosen
(D) It is currently unavailable at the venue

68.

What can Ms. Forsythe do to reduce her total cost?

(A) Reduce the number of attendees to 40
(B) Choose a venue closer to the participants
(C) Hold the summit on a single day
(D) Confirm the booking before the end of March

Riverton's Cargo-Bike Pilot Surprises Skeptics

When the Riverton city council approved a six-month trial of electric cargo bikes for downtown deliveries last autumn, few local business owners expected much. The bikes — bulky, three-wheeled machines capable of hauling up to 200 kilograms — looked impractical on streets long dominated by delivery vans.

Yet six months on, the results have quieted many critics. According to a report released by the Department of Urban Mobility, participating couriers completed deliveries within the central district an average of 14 minutes faster than van drivers, largely because the bikes could use bicycle lanes and park directly outside storefronts.

"I assumed it was a publicity stunt," admitted Priya Anand, who owns a bookshop on Garrick Street. "But my morning shipments now arrive before opening, which never used to happen. I've stopped complaining."

Not everyone is convinced the model can scale. Logistics analyst Tomas Reinholt cautions that the pilot covered only the compact downtown core. "Cargo bikes shine over short distances on flat terrain," he noted. "Extend the radius to the hilly outer suburbs, and the time savings evaporate. The council should resist the temptation to treat this as a citywide solution."

The council is expected to vote next month on whether to make the program permanent within the downtown zone. Notably, the proposal under discussion would not expand the bikes beyond that area — a detail that aligns with Reinholt's reservations, even if he remains broadly cautious.

What is the main idea of the article?

(A) A delivery experiment performed better than many people anticipated
(B) A city council rejected a proposal to ban delivery vans
(C) Electric cargo bikes have replaced all vans in Riverton
(D) Local businesses are protesting a new transportation policy

70.

According to the article, why were the cargo bikes faster than vans downtown?

(A) They were operated by more experienced drivers
(B) They could travel longer distances without recharging
(C) They could use bike lanes and park right outside shops
(D) They carried fewer items per trip

71.

What does Mr. Reinholt suggest about the program?

(A) It should be canceled immediately
(B) Its benefits may not hold up beyond the downtown core
(C) It is already being used in the suburbs successfully
(D) It requires more cargo bikes to be effective

72.

The word "reservations" in the last paragraph is closest in meaning to

(A) advance bookings
(B) doubts
(C) designated areas
(D) supplies

Renata Okoye (8:42 A.M.)
Hey Sam, quick one — the client just moved our product demo from Thursday to this afternoon at 3. Can the prototype be ready?

Sam Delgado (8:45 A.M.)
The software side is fine, but the casing came back from the printer with a cracked hinge. I flagged it yesterday.

Renata Okoye (8:46 A.M.)
Right, I saw your note but thought it was minor. How bad is it?

Sam Delgado (8:48 A.M.)
It won't survive being opened and closed a few times in front of the client. We have two options: demo it sealed and just talk through the interior, or I rush a replacement hinge from the supplier on Oak Street.

Renata Okoye (8:50 A.M.)
How long would the replacement take?

Sam Delgado (8:51 A.M.)
If I leave now, I can be back and have it installed by 1. Tight but doable.

Renata Okoye (8:52 A.M.)
Do it. The whole point of this demo is showing how smoothly the case opens. Talking through it won't land the same way. I'll handle the client paperwork while you're out.

Sam Delgado (8:53 A.M.)
On it. Heading to the car now.

73.

Why did Ms. Okoye contact Mr. Delgado?

(A) To reschedule a meeting with the printer
(B) To inform him that a demonstration was moved earlier
(C) To ask him to repair the demo software
(D) To request additional staff for an event

74.

What problem does Mr. Delgado describe?

(A) The software is not functioning
(B) The supplier on Oak Street has closed
(C) The casing has a cracked hinge
(D) The client canceled the order

75.

At 8:52 A.M., what does Ms. Okoye most likely mean when she writes, "Talking through it won't land the same way"?

(A) The client may not understand a verbal explanation
(B) The presentation should be delivered by a different person
(C) The meeting should be postponed until Thursday
(D) Demonstrating the case physically is more persuasive than describing it

Local Bookshop Finds New Life as a Gathering Spot

By Tara Whitfield, Staff Reporter

When Corner Page Books opened on Maple Street eleven years ago, owner Greta Halloran sold mainly used novels and the occasional greeting card. Today, the shop looks rather different. Half of the floor space is now occupied by a small café, and a back room hosts everything from poetry readings to children's story hours.

"For a while, sales were slipping," Ms. Halloran admitted. "People could buy the same books online for less. I realized I wasn't really selling books anymore — I was selling a place to be." Rather than competing on price, she decided to give customers reasons to stay.

The change did not happen overnight. Ms. Halloran spent nearly a year renovating the space and partnering with a neighboring bakery to supply pastries. She also began charging a modest membership fee that grants regulars discounts on coffee and early access to author events. To her surprise, more than two hundred people signed up in the first three months.

The strategy appears to be working. Foot traffic has roughly doubled, and book sales — far from disappearing — have actually risen, as visitors who come for the café often leave with a novel as well. Other independent shop owners in the area have taken notice, and at least two have asked Ms. Halloran for advice.

Still, she is cautious about expanding too quickly. "I get offers to open a second location almost every month," she said. "But the whole point is that this place feels personal. I'd rather do one thing well than spread myself thin."

80.

What is the main idea of the article?

(A) A bookshop closed because of online competition.
(B) A bookshop owner changed her business approach to attract customers.
(C) A bakery expanded into selling used books.
(D) A city is encouraging residents to read more.

81.

According to the article, why did Ms. Halloran decide to change her shop?

(A) Her landlord raised the rent.
(B) She wanted to sell more greeting cards.
(C) Customers were buying books online for less.
(D) A bakery offered to buy her business.

82.

What is suggested about the membership program?

(A) It was more popular than the owner expected.
(B) It was discontinued after three months.
(C) It is required to enter the café.
(D) It replaced the shop's book sales.

83.

The word "cautious" in the last paragraph is closest in meaning to

(A) careful
(B) excited
(C) confused
(D) disappointed

EMAIL

To: Marisol Vendrell, Facilities Manager
From: Dev Patrana, Office Coordinator
Date: 14 March
Subject: Relocation of the third-floor break room

Dear Ms. Vendrell,

I am writing to follow up on our conversation last week about the renovation of the east wing. As you know, the third-floor break room will be closed for repairs starting Monday, 24 March. Because the renovation is expected to take roughly six weeks, the staff will need an alternative space during that period.

I have inspected the empty conference room on the second floor (Room 218) and believe it would serve well as a temporary break area. However, it currently lacks a refrigerator and a sink, both of which the staff rely on daily. Could your team install a portable refrigerator before the 24th? The sink is less critical, as a water dispenser is already available nearby.

One more thing: several employees have asked whether the vending machines from the old break room can be moved to Room 218 rather than left unused. I think this is a reasonable request, but I'll defer to your judgment on whether relocating them is worth the effort for a temporary setup.

Please let me know if Room 218 works for you, or if you'd prefer to suggest a different location. I'd like to inform the staff by Friday so they have time to adjust.

Best regards,
Dev Patrana

84.

Why did Mr. Patrana write the email?

(A) To request approval for a renovation budget
(B) To arrange a temporary space while a break room is repaired
(C) To complain about the condition of Room 218
(D) To announce the opening of a new east wing

85.

What does Mr. Patrana ask Ms. Vendrell's team to install?

(A) A sink
(B) A water dispenser
(C) A portable refrigerator
(D) A vending machine

86.

What is suggested about the vending machines?

(A) They are broken and need to be replaced
(B) Some employees want them moved to Room 218
(C) They will be permanently removed from the building
(D) Ms. Vendrell already approved moving them

Greenhollow Community Library — Service Update

Starting Saturday, 5 July, the library will launch a new self-checkout system at all three branches. The system allows members to borrow up to ten items without staff assistance. To use it, simply scan your membership card, then scan each item.

Please note the following during the transition:

• For the first two weeks, a volunteer will be stationed near each machine to help members unfamiliar with the process.
• The returns desk will continue to be staffed as usual; only checkouts are affected.
• Members with overdue fines must still settle them at the front desk, as the machines cannot process payments.

We expect shorter wait times once members grow comfortable with the new system. Questions may be directed to your branch coordinator.
